3. FAQ

? 1. Question: Since AI contract signals are so accurate, why doesn't Zenix Trade just copy the trades and profit?

A A: Zenix Trade possesses a high-win-rate AI contract signal system developed by a professional team, which has been proven in real-world trading under various market conditions. However, we consistently adhere to a strategic layout centered on the platform and guided by the ecosystem.

While direct copy trading can generate short-term profits, its scale is limited and it cannot support a scalable long-term growth model. Our goal is to help more traders achieve profitability on the Zenix platform by providing users with stable and sustainable AI trading signal services, thereby increasing trading activity, user stickiness, and asset liquidity across the platform.

This will not only help Zenix build a strong user base and market trust, but also enable Zenix Trade, as a core investor, to receive more valuable returns from the platform's long-term growth, such as platform dividends, ecosystem synergy opportunities, and strategic asset appreciation.

Our business philosophy is not "single-point arbitrage" but "ecological win-win."

2. Question: Why can't I invest all my assets at once when using AI signals, but can only invest 1% of the principal?

A: The Zenix Trade platform's AI signal system is strategically supported by Zenix Trade Digital Capital Inc. It has been proven through long-term real-time trading and boasts a stable strategy. However, we also prioritize user asset security and risk control.

The initial investment limit for each copy trade is 1% of the principal, primarily based on the following three considerations:

Control volatility risks and ensure fund security

Even the best strategies cannot completely avoid market fluctuations. By following orders in batches and investing gradually, you can effectively reduce the impact of a single market anomaly on your overall assets.

Protect user emotions and avoid irrational operations

Many users are prone to “overweighting” or “panic selling” when encountering a drawdown due to emotions. Setting a ratio limit can help users maintain a rational trading rhythm.

Follow institutional-level risk control models

Zenix Trade widely applies the “Capital Allocation Rules” found in traditional hedge funds and quantitative investing, consistently emphasizing that long-term, stable profitability = strategy × discipline × risk control, not blindly investing heavily. In other words, we are not asking you to “try it at will”, but helping you “achieve long-term success”.
